FROM THE DESK OF MAYOR MIKE WEATHERBY..... Hello to all Fairview citizens! As Mother Nature tries to decide what type of spring this will be, I continue to call of meetings of East County leaders. Most recently I have requested a meeting of the East County Mayors including Fairview, Troutdale, Wood Village, and Gresham. METRO Councilor Shirley Craddick will be meeting with the Mayors to discuss the latest METRO project that they are pushing forward: a clean air initiative called "Climate Smart Communities." It appears a major factor in much of this will result in increased costs to the personal budgets of Fairview residents. Clean air is something we all want; however, I do not believe that government should cause citizens to reach into their pockets in order to change their behavior. I do hope that the Mayors can present a unified view to Councilor Craddick that represents our citizens and that she will bring forward those concerns to the METRO Council. My best to all and for a better Fairview.... Sincerely, Mayor Mike

You know how it goes— you're not sure what to do with a household product that might be too hazardous to put in the garbage can, so it just ends up collecting dust in your garage or basement. Any responsible river-lover wants to make sure they don't dispose of something improperly. Visit LoveYourRiver.org to get the scoop on what to do with some of the most puzzling household toxic trash. When you pledge to get that stuff out of your house before it breaks or spills, you'll be entered in the drawing for a daypack from REI.
